Ask Him & choose 1 or 2 valued friends to connect deeper & consistently. Try texting, "I appreciate you & hope you'll benefit from this brief friendship coaching I found at MenHuddle.com.

2. THIS WEEK – Text & call one guy to have a 30 minute catch up conversation on his life. (Set an appointment if needed, at a good time & private location to talk.) Ask 1) What's the most important thing going on in your life you'd like to share? 2) How can I best pray for you? PRAY for him immediately. Offer to share your answers to the same 2 questions. See what happens in your friendship.

3. NEXT WEEK – Text & call your friend again for a similar check in. Do the same text/call/conversation with one other trusted friend (you already sent him the PLAYBOOK). This 2nd friend should be a guy the 1st friend likes (possibly an excellent guy in a friendship trio which may become a 3-friend huddle group that meets consistently.

4. THIS MONTH – Talk to both guys about the idea of becoming consistent by scheduling a connection time each week. Discuss the simple model & tips in the PLAYBOOK to help you get on the same page with clarity. Float the idea of the 3 of you setting a weekly call, zoom or gathering to huddle and support each other. It's fine to start with two.

5. IF GUYS ARE INTERESTED, set up a fun get-together (meal, hike, sport...or zoom for different cities). Get together & ask what each needs & wants in friendship. Suggest a weekly huddle call, zoom or meeting. Find a time & book it on calendars. If helpful, do a trial period of 3-4 months, with freedom to stay friends but step away from the huddle, if desired.
